Emma Kauffman was always interested in fashion. When she was a little girl she spent all her pocket money on fashion magazines and she always designed and drew clothes that then she made to put on her dolls. She never told her parents about how important fashion was for her.

Her mother is a teacher and her father works in a big factory. They always wanted Emma to go to university to study business or management, so this is what Emma did. After going to university she moved to London and worked in an advertising agency. She had to go to many work events and she didn't have enough money to buy expensive designer clothes that she liked. So, she started to make her own clothes, like tops, skirts and dresses. When her friends saw her clothes, they asked to make things for them. After a few months she opened a little shop in London and her creations became very popular. It was the moment to tell her parents, who were very happy about her success.
